

The best thing I learned this year

This year I have learned about many things and people. One in particular tops the list. An athlete who can stand-up to any challenge, a genius in a world full of brilliant minds, and a gentleman to the very end. Call it vanity, self-praise or simply just arrogance, but there is no denying that this person is me.

Within us flows the essence of life. It runs through our veins, making us individuals with a uniqueness that identifies us.

Feeling you're not adequate and idolizing others isn't the way to go. Why be someone greater, when the greatest person you'll ever meet is yourself. That's right! You are the greatest person you'll ever meet. Like me, embrace your individuality and seek what differentiates you from others.

"Don't look around for a hero. Be your own hero".
Jack Black (from Kung-Fu Panda)

I live by the motto, "Dare to be different".
